ROOTS REGGAE

Natural Mighty is a product straight from the French hood scene, powerful, sensitive and sometimes rough, but sincere, what the members of the band Natural Mighty all have in common is their unconditional love for the original reggae roots music, as well as their urban culture.

Against all odds they do not following the traditional clichés, as far as what type of clothes they must wear but they fight with determination for unity, and peace between communities. Being from the Paris region, the band plays their original roots music full of conscious words and wisdom about the world in which they live. It all started in 2007, when Gene-Vincent joined the band and give band's actual identity. Following a series of successful concerts in the Paris area, Gene-Vincent's unique singing style and original compositions, had fans coming back in greater numbers; this encouraged the collective to record their first album.

NATURAL MIGHTY decides to record and produce their first album at Studio 33 in November 2011, this was the big band featuring, trumpet trombone and sax; it reinforced and enriched their music. This album expresses their thoughts as to where their place in the world is. The message is heard in songs such as "War" or "Survive", other songs such as "Help Me" and "Remember" gives a more intimate look into the group's personality. The media crowned them second in 2011 as the new French revelation in reggae music. This album was responsible for substantial increased their fan base.

Their first album also allows them to make first contact with major reggae artists in the Paris area such as Bella (Mami Watta), Francky (FPP "Party Time") or Dubz (RMP "Shake the Town") as well as Harrison Stafford of (Groundation) and Norman Grant (Twinkle Brothers).

With each concert, Natural Mighty tells its own personal story of the daily life of a French reggae band, struggling to be fair and true, these last years have given them the opportunity to share the stage with other well-known bands such as Shaman Culture, Wailing Trees and Old Dodge Fellows.
