REGGAE / JAMAICA

The French label Humbleness Production returns with the 3rd extract from his Boom Shell Riddim series. Following the singles signed Leroy 'Heptones' Sibbles and Mykal Rose, this time is an artist to discover which is highlighted: Young Garvey, protégé of Jamaican veteran Leroy Sibbles !

Use Weh She Got dynamites the riddim with energetic vocals and dancehall influences in which Young Garvey warns against consumerism at excess, individualism and prepares the new generation for thwart the traps of our society so that spread more love and unity in the heart of Ghetto youth. Use Weh She Got was recorded at Bright Beam Music Studio's (Kingston 19, JA) by Leroy 'Heptones' Sibbles himself, to whom we owe the famous Boom Shell Riddim's bass line! To keep the same flame as the previous releases, this new single has also passed into expert hands of Zion Master at Anchor Studio (Jamaica) for mixing and mastering works. The single is available digitally now on all download and streaming platforms. Find all the news from the Boom Shell Riddim on the Humbleness Productions youtube channel.

BIOGRAPHY : Young Garvey artist Fabian Findley was born March 17, 1982 in the Jamaican parish of St. Andrew, near Duhaney Park where he spent his childhood. It's very early on that he showed a real talent for singing and his family encouraged his abilities. This is when of a Christmas ceremony at his village church the young Fabian stunned the assembly with his vocal performance. He left Jamaica at the age of 11, migrating with his family to New York where his mother is determined to give her children a better life. Fabian is enrolled in high school (Mark Twain Junior High School) to continue studying. But his passion for music is more and more present and he stares longingly at the other children who are learning about hip hop in particular. It keeps on practice and spend his time typing beats on his table and posing his first texts, in freestyle, with his classmates. Caught up in this consuming passion, he decides that music will be his vocation. It was a friend who gave him the name Young Garvey because of his constant discussions about the duty to uplift the black people. One day his friend jokes "you talk like you think you are Marcus Garvey", he replies in the affirmative "Yes I feel like young Garvey". It is from this day that he adopted this artist name: Young Garvey. In 2007, he returned to his native island, Jamaica, with a plan and a mission. He launches his own label One Nation Music and begins producing artists like Capleton, Mr. G, Harry Toddler or Daville.
